

Diligently Working Towards the Best Possible Results

"No case is too big and no one is too insignificant"-reads the welcoming tagline of The Law Offices of Marjory Cajoux. With a proficient team capable of handling a full range of legal matters, including estate planning and probate, employment discrimination, medical malpractice, real estate, business formation and corporate law, divorce and family law, personal injury, civil litigation, immigration and removal proceedings, The Law Offices of Marjory Cajoux, based in Brooklyn, NY has been beating all odds, practicing under the leadership of founder and attorney Marjory Cajoux.

Marjory Cajoux battled her first case to victory in the late 90's and there has been no looking back since then for her and the team of enthusiastic attorneys. "The landscape of immigration law has transformed to a much more rigid and rugged system. Handling an immigration case back in 1990's was much simpler to what it is now after the 9/11 and all other cross border tensions. Even individuals with genuine paper works today suffer due to the impeccable standards in the immigration process," says Marjory. With over two decades of experience in Immigration law and through continuous research, Marjory has won the toughest of all cases, establishing trust and faith among all its individual and institutional clients.

The Law Offices of Marjory Cajoux partners with individuals and institutions who seek assistance in immigration for work, travel, leisure or family visits; companies and factories hiring managers, technicians and other candidates to work in the U.S.; students and artists looking to build a career, and other immigrants. Most companies willing to transfer executives from other countries to the U.S. often find it difficult to get the relief due to reasons including seasoned politics and finance. While some understand the process to be time consuming and tiresome, there are also a set of clients who wish to get a speedy solution to their problems. "Today, most of the clients, irrespective of being an individual or institution, are aware about law and its proceedings and have certain basic expectations when they visit a law firm, which has made the entire process easier and understandable between both parties," says Marjory. Towards this, the firm goes beyond all boundaries taking necessary precautions to ensure their clients are given justice before the court of law in record time.

"It is very important for an attorney or a law firm to be up-to-date with information in the immigration space as the possibility of success or failure of the case lies in a thin thread. At The Law Offices of Marjory Cajoux, we remain in close contact with our clients to understand the whereabouts of the issue. We conduct a thorough study, research on all the loop holes and give out the best solution thereby winning the case. This attitude and style of work sets us apart from our competitors," says Cajoux.

Going forward, The Law Offices of Marjory Cajoux looks to attract more individuals and institutions by giving them confidence and by strictly adhering to its core principle that no individual or institution is insignificant and no case is too big or hard to crack.
